VILLAGE COUNCIL

Regular monthly meeting of Village Council was held on Wednesday evening.

Reeve Egedahl and Councillors Purdy and Olson were present.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted.

The Council has purchased Lot 7 Blk 1 for the jail site, and operations on building will commence next week.

Hanson and Dickson have received the contract.

There was quite a discussion on the sidewalk and roadway questions, but nothing definite was decided until a survey for the grade of the Main Street is secured.

All yards, ash and manure heaps must be cleared away during this month and the Council intends enforcing this by-law.

The following accounts were passed and ordered paid:—

A carload of horses arrived on Wednesday and will be sold to-morrow, Saturday.

Gordon Booth returned during the week and is now on his farm at Pemukan.

French gain ground north of Caillitte Woods during night.

The French gained considerable ground in night attacks.

The Germans now have thirty divisions around Verdun and during the past months fighting have lost 150,000 men.

It is said the Germans have abandoned hope of ever taking Verdun and are only continuing their attacks to try and prevent a French offensive elsewhere.

The German Chancellor in a speech before the Reichstag declared that any peace proposals that would mean the destruction of the Prussian military power, would only have one answer—the German sword.

Col. Allison who is mixed up in the Shell Committee charges at Ottawa, is returning to Canada.

There is a possibility of the Government taking over the C. N. R.

The Railway is in hard lines in the way of money, and they have been after the Government for another loan.

Canada has enlisted nearly 300,000 men.

During the month of March the number enlisted in Canada was 32,705, a little over 1,000 daily.

Of this number Alberta shows 1,309 enlistments in 2 weeks.

Since the outbreak of the war 295,680 men have joined the colors.

STOPPED SHORT

Taking Tonics, and Built up on Right Food

The mistake is frequently made of trying to build up a worn-out nervous system on so-called tonics.

New material from which to rebuild used up tissue cells is what should be supplied, and this can be obtained only from proper food.

"I found myself on the verge of a nervous collapse, due to overwork, study, and to illness in the family," writes a young mother.

"My friends became alarmed because I grew pale and thin and could not sleep nights. I took various tonics, but their effects wore off shortly after I stopped taking them. My food did not seem to nourish me."

"Reading of Grape-Nuts, I determined to stop the tonics and see what a change of diet would do. I ate Grape-Nuts four times a day with cream, and drank milk also, went to bed early after eating a dish of Grape-Nuts."

"In about two weeks I was sleeping soundly. In a short time gained weight and felt like a different woman. Grape-Nuts and fresh air were the only agents used to accomplish the happy results."

RHEUMATISM A MYSTERY

Unless Rooted Out of the System It Grows Worse and Worse.

Some diseases give immunity from another attack, but rheumatism works just the other way. Every attack of rheumatism invites another. Worse than that it reduces the body's power so that each attack is worse than the one before. If any disease needs curing early it is rheumatism, but there are few cases physicians find more difficult to treat successfully. Wet weather does not cause rheumatism as was once thought, though weather conditions may start the aches and pains. Rheumatism is now known to be dependent upon the blood condition and medical authorities agree that the blood becomes tinct with alarming rapidity as rheumatism develops. Maintaining the quality of the blood is, therefore, a reasonable way of preventing and curing rheumatism. That it works out in fact is shown by the beneficial results which follow a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich blood which drives out the rheumatic poison, and while the blood is kept in this condition there is no danger of the trouble returning. Mr. W. T. Peck, Palermo, Ont., says: "I was attacked with a trouble which was ultimately pronounced rheumatism. Often I was barely able to crawl into bed, and seldom able to do a full day's work. In this condition I doctored for a year, absolutely getting no better. Then I consulted another doctor whose chief consolation was that unless I could get rid of the trouble I would be a cripple for life. He prescribed, and I doctored with him for at least six months, but instead of getting relief I became weaker and less able to get around. Then I decided to try a doctor in Toronto, and was under his treatment for about four months with no better results. I gave up the doctors and tried other remedies which were equally futile. Then one day our store keeper sent me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, saying that if they did not help me I need not pay for them. I took them and then got some more and found they were helping me. I probably used $10 worth before I felt fully cured, but they cured me and were cheap as compared with the other treatments which did not help me. The cure was made several years ago, and I have not had a twinge of rheumatism since. Today I am well and strong and I believe I owe it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail, post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

If a snail could make up to look like a race horse it would find plenty of men ready to bet on it.

Away With Depression and Melancholy.—These two evils are the accompaniment of a disordered stomach and torpid liver and mean wretchedness to all whom they visit. The surest and speediest way to combat them is with Parmentier's Vegetable Pills, which will restore the healthful action of the stomach and bring relief. They have proved their usefulness in thousands of cases and will continue to give relief to the suffering who are wise enough to use them.

The plot would retire from the field vanquished and binding up the wounds to its pocketbook were the women to fight it with the kind of pies that mother used to make.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the cure. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running water in your hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be lost. Deafness is caused by ten different causes, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. We will give you a hundred dollars for any case of deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by J. C. Cassell's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Britain Handles Mail

As Fast as Possible

The enormous number of parcels of merchandise seized from the parcels post while en route to and from the United States are being dispersed of as rapidly as possible by the British authorities.

Parcels considered innocent after a preliminary examination are sent on as quickly as possible to their destination, while others of origin or destination which are subject to suspicion must pass through the usual prize court procedure to which goods seized in ordinary transit must submit.

The procurator-general of the prize court is now trying to get information from the consignees of parcels consisting of goods suspected to be of German origin in order to ascertain if these were shipped under arrangements whereby the British government permits American importers to ship certain kinds of goods from Germany.

Every Stiff Joint Limbered, Rheumatism Cured!

That Old Family Remedy, "Nerviline" is Guaranteed for the Worst Cases

CURES NEURALGIA, BACKACHE, LUMBAGO

Rheumatism today is unnecessary. It is so well understood and so readily curable that every day we have reports of old chronics being freed of their torment.

"I can speak confidently of the Nerviline treatment, for the simple reason that it cured me," writes Albert B. Cornelius from Kingston. "You can't imagine how stiff and lame and sore I was. Nights at a time I couldn't sleep well. I followed the Nerviline directions carefully—had it rubbed into the sore regions four or five times every day. Every rubbing helped to reduce the pain. The swelling went down. I got a fair measure of relief in a week. I also took two Ferrazole Tablets with my meals. They increased my appetite and spirit, purified my blood and toned up my system generally."

"I am as well today as a man could be—in perfect good health. I give Nerviline all the credit."

A large family size bottle of Nerviline costs only 50¢, or the trial size 25¢, and is useful in a hundred ills in the family. It's toothache, headache, neuralgia, lame back or a cold. Nerviline will cure just as readily as it will cure rheumatism. The family use nothing equals Nerviline.

Your Kidneys

may cause DROPSY, RHEUMATISM, BACKACHE or GENERAL WEAKNESS.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the Proved Remedy.

Take them for all Kidney & Urinary Troubles.

In these trying complaints Dr. Cassell's Tablets are of proved value. They restore perfect efficiency to the kidneys by nourishing the nerves which control kidney action, and thus enable the system to get rid of uric acid and other impurities which are the cause of Urinary Troubles, Dropsy, and Rheumatism.

Dr. Chas. Forshaw, D.Sc., F.R.S., etc., the well-known scientist, says: "I have thoroughly tested Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and am conscientiously recommending them as an eminently safe and effective remedy for all forms of nerve and bodily weakness. My knowledge of Dr. Cassell's Tablets leads me to the opinion that the ingredients form a remarkably potent medicine, quite safe for young and old in cases of nervous prostration, debility, anemia, loss of flesh, malnutrition, children's weakness, spinal and nerve paralysis, and many forms of stomach and kidney troubles."

Dr. Cassell's Tablets raise the vital standard of the entire system, and thus promote kidney health and general health when other means fail.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are Nutritive, Restorative, Alternative, and Anti-Spasmic, and of great Therapeutic value in all derangements of the Nerve and Functional Systems in old or young. They are the recognized home remedy for Nervous Breakdown, Nerve and Spinal Paralysis, Infantile Paralysis, Rickets, St. Vitus' Dance, Anemia, Sleeplessness, Kidney Disease, Dyspepsia, Stomach Catarrh, Brain Fog, Headache, Palpitation, Wasting Diseases, Vital Exhaustion, Loss of Flesh, and Premature Decay. Specially valuable for Nursing Mothers and during the Critical Periods of Life.

Druggists and Dealers throughout Canada sell Dr. Cassell's Tablets. If not procurable in your city send to the sole agents, Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10, McCaul Street, Toronto; one tube 50 cents, six tubes for the price of five.

Co-operative Methods

The Modern Way to Ship Livestock to Market

The live stock shipping associations, common in Minnesota and Wisconsin, are co-operative institutions of unusual merit. They substitute for the old local buyer system, a system of handling stock that results in an actual saving in necessary expenses amounting to forty or fifty dollars a carload. This saving is entirely outside of any profits that the local buyer might take. It is quite impossible for a local buyer to compete with a shipping association.

There are approximately 200 of these associations in Minnesota, and so far as we know, says A. D. Wilson, director of the extension division of the Minnesota college of agriculture, not one has failed. The organization is exceedingly simple as no capital stock is sold and none is needed. It represents simply a mutual agreement by a group of farmers to ship their stock together, and by this means each farmer, regardless of the amount of stock handled, is enabled to ship to a central market at carload rates and to get exactly what his stock brings on the market less the cost of freight, yardage, commission, etc. In other words, a man can sell one hog to just as good advantage as he can a carload.

A Household Medicine.—They that are acquainted with the sterling properties of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil in the treatment of many ailments would not be without it in the house. It is truly a household medicine and as it is effective in dealing with many ordinary complaints it is cheaper than a doctor. So, keep it at hand, as the call for it may come most unexpectedly.

The Boys' and Girls' Clubs

One of the most valuable and interesting organizations started and supervised by the U.S. department of agriculture, is the boys' and girls' clubs throughout the agricultural sections of this country. In the southern states 110,000,000 boys and girls were enrolled during 1915. Of the 60,000 boys many were interested in soil improvement and in pig and poultry raising. The 50,000 girls were enrolled in the canning clubs. In the northern and western states there were 150,000 boys and girls enrolled in various clubs. The leading projects were the growing of corn, potatoes, garden and canning work. Aside from the educational value of this work the social and economic co-operation resulting from these clubs is beyond all valuation.

How Sickly Women

May Get Health

If they could only be made to see that half their ills are caused by impure blood, it wouldn't take long to cure them with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. FRIDAY, APRIL the 7th, 1916

At the present time there is in England close to one thousand men holding commissions in the Canadian army, including, majors, captains and lieutenants, who are doing nothing in the way of fighting, yet are still drawing between four and five thousand dollars in pay, daily. These men could be serving in the trenches if they would accept lower positions, for they could certainly be used to great advantage in France.

These men should either be made to go to the front and fight or give up their commissions and return to this country.

They talk about the wastage of war, but here is a wastage that can easily be remedied.

Most of the lieutenants are doing such service as might be easily done by office boys.

These idle officers are of no use as combatants and the soon they are made to earn their salt the better it will be for them and their country.

While we recognize the perfect right of every man to buy where he pleases and how he pleases, even to the complete exclusion of the home dealer, we question very much the wisdom of his doing so. We may be wrong, for it is a question that every man must solve for himself. However, here are a few reasons why we think you should patronize home dealers when possible. Read them, investigate, and use your own judgement: Considering quality freight and service, home prices are as low as mail order prices.

Home merchants are in a position to render incomparably better than distant houses, and they do give such service. One who buys of a home merchant may see the goods in person, discuss merits of articles and have other privileges that are not possible when you deal with a mail order house. By the nature of things, one may rely upon home merchants more than on distant houses. This because the home merchants meet their patrons face to face and have to make good. If a bad purchase is made it will be brought back or a personal complaint made. The mail order house is virtually free from such trouble. You know why.

The home merchant is in a position to extend credit accommodations and is generous and courteous in doing so; not so the mail order house. In this country, where men and money are both busy, credit accommodations mean much. The home merchant is your friend when you are in need, and he is at least entitled to fair treatment when you have cash to spend.

The interests of the country people and of home merchants are identical, and self interest calls for patronizing such stores.

The mail order house attracts business through playing upon man's weakness to look upon distant fields as greener than those at home.

Note and Comment

International law is not very influential at present, but it must be borne in mind that enough scraps of paper carelessly treated may start a dangerous blaze.

A St. Paul genius, of malign influence towards his sex, has invented a contrivance by which husbands softly creeping home automatically register the hour of their coming in when they open the door. (Continued)

Paul Payne was astonished at the devotion shown to his fiancée by the people on the Winters estate, and he expressed his feeling to her one day when he had accompanied her on a visit to a cottage where there lived an old woman who was one of her special friends. She had insisted on introducing Paul to "Granny Bald", and he had been so charming that the old woman seemed inclined to transfer her affection from Lady Ursula to her fiancé.

Lady Ursula told him so, with much glee, as they walked toward the Hall afterwards.

Paul Payne, always courteous and gentle, seemed to be touched with emotion quite unusual with him as he answered:

"There's no fear of that. The old woman likes me because she doesn't know me; she loves you because she does."

Lady Ursula smiled with that radiant which had come upon her with her new love.

"The more she knows you the better Granny will like you, Paul, just as I do," she said gently.

He shrugged his shoulders.

"Perhaps you're nearer the mark than you think," he said with an odd touch of restlessness and a tone she scarcely understood. "You like me now better than you did when you knew me better. I'm a bit of a bad lot, you know."

She shook her head.

"Don't say silly things to me," she said.

"They're not silly, they're true," said he with a strange dryness.

She looked at him with her usual directness.

"If you had been—what you say you are," she said simply. "Mr. Fitch would not have taken you to his wife's people, would he not be such an enthusiastic friend of yours?"

He seemed on the point of saying something more, but changed his mind, and fell back into his usual tone, careless, flattered, attentive, perhaps a trifle artificial. And the subject was not re-opened.

Did it cause any misgivings to the loyal-hearted Lady Ursula? It is very unlikely.

So they drifted along to the day of the wedding, which was as quiet as possible.

Lord Gravenhurst, still undecided as to the desirability of the bridegroom, left the task of giving the bride away to his son, and stayed at home with the groom.

Lady Ursula was married in the conventional white dress, but changed into her travelling dress, and caught an early afternoon train to London with her husband and her brother, who was to see them off at Charing Cross Road.

On reaching that station, together with his sister and brother-in-law, the young viscount had his attention drawn by the sight of a London detective who had been down at Winterland in connection with an attempt at burglary during the previous summer.

Lord Eastling stepped aside to speak to the detective, who asked him point-blank who the gentleman was he had just seen with him.

"It's my brother-in-law, a Mr. Paul Payne," replied the viscount.

The detective received this answer in a dead silence which puzzled the young man.

"Do you know him?" he asked abruptly.

"Not under that name, my lord," answered the officer simply.

Lord Eastling flushed uneasily.

"You've mistaken him for someone else, no doubt," he said quickly.

"I don't know so, my lord."

"Do you mean—that he's been through your hands?" asked the young viscount, appalled by the decision in the officer's tone.

The detective shook his head.

"No such luck, my lord. He's too clever," said he.

There was a short silence. Then Lord Eastling asked:

"Tell me the name of the man you take him for."

And quite simply the detective replied:

"Syd Tomkinson, the forger."

CHAPTER III.

Of course, the first emotion experienced by the young viscount, on receiving the detective's answer, was incredulity mingled with a certain angry indignation.

For what was the suggestion thus crudely made? None other than that the man who had found his way into the earl's house, ingratiated himself with the family and succeeded in winning one of its daughters in marriage, was a scoundrel well known to the police.

Such things could not be, and Lord Eastling, receiving the words of the detective with an angry stare and a hasty, backward step as if from an unseen thing, turned abruptly, and stalked away among the crowd.

Superintendent Redding made no attempt to follow him. On seeing that the information was ill received, he merely saluted and walked away in his turn, leaving his words to be digested at the young viscount's leisure.

And then, of course, they began to stir the most unpleasant suspicions and surmises in the mind of that unfortunate young man.

He saw, in the first place, that he had done wrong in treating the information in this contemptuous manner. The officer could have no possible motive for giving it to him but the wish to be of service to him in a most difficult and terrible situation. If he was wrong—and, being human, he might have made a mistake—he had said enough to expose himself to a charge of libel. And knowing this, Lord Eastling felt that he had been ungrateful, to say the least of it.

While if he was right—Good Heaven!

The young man grew cold at the terrible thought.

For a few short moments indeed he stood close by the bookstall, bewildered, tortured by such fears, and unable to think clearly. If this horrible story were true, he could not allow his sister to leave England in the company of the man she had married. She must at all hazards learn that there was a suspicion against him, she must be prevented, by some pretext or other, from going away until the matter had been fully gone into.

What then? If the tale should be proved to be false, it was very certain that Payne would show any anxiety to bring his brother-in-law to account for such a mistake. There would be apologies, explanations, deliberations, there might be indignation, expostulation, amazement; but there would assuredly be no scandal. No need to care to make any change of the world that he has been mistaken for a scoundrel, and least of all a bridegroom going away with his bride.

On the other hand, supposing the story to be true, some way out of the tangle must be found, short, direct, and plain. They could not possibly recognize marriage between Lady Ursula and a swindler, and in the first moment of his excitement, it seemed to Lord Eastling that some means to make her legally free, without too much scandal or too much publicity, might—nay, must—be found.

Suddenly he seemed to recover from the stupor into which he had been thrown, and raising his head, he looked about him at the crowd, searching for his sister and her husband.

But he saw no sign of them, and, after a rapid glance round, he was about to make his way to the departure platform, when he found Redding once more at his elbow.

The officer looked good-natured and kindly.

"I'm afraid I was rather too abrupt my lord," he said. "It's fairly knocked you over."

These words seemed to drive conviction of the truth into Lord Eastling's brain with overwhelming force. He turned to look up into the bronzed face and steady brown eyes of the detective.

"It's not true. It can't be," he said hoarsely.

Redding did not flinch.

"Well, my lord, say it isn't true. There's no harm in that," he suggested.

"But, anyhow, take my advice, and don't let her ladyship leave England with the chap."

Lord Eastling took a step towards the platform and then turned back suddenly, overwhelmed afresh by the difficulties of his situation.

"But what on earth can I say to him? What excuse can I give?" he asked in desperation, shrinking from a scene which was bound to be painful in the extreme not only for himself but for his sister.

The question was hard to answer. The detective nodded.

"If I walk up the platform with you, my lord," he said in a low voice, "and stand a little way behind you, so that he can see me, you won't have much difficulty, I should think, in getting him to clear out."

As Lord Eastling echoed these words, horrors of a fresh kind suggested themselves to him. He turned to the detective and saw him a little way out of the throng of passengers and hurrying porters, asked anxiously:

"Tell me, have you a warrant against him?"

Hearty, sadly, the officer replied with promptitude:

"My lord, I only wish I had!"

King Presents Horse to Government. King George has presented to the Canadian government, for remounting purposes the famous stallion Anmer. This is the horse that struck and killed the suffragist, Miss Davidson, who ran onto the track and clutched his bridle in the Derby three years ago. He is 15 years old. His sire, Florio II, was a full brother to Persimmon and Diamond Jubilee, bred by and St. Leger winners for the late King Edward. Anmer's dam, Guinea Hen, was a famous brood mare.

WHY EYESIGHT FAILS

By a Specialist.

Poor sight and bad teeth are due to the same cause—bristly. We neglect our teeth and they decay; we neglect our eyes, and our sight grows dim. People know how to preserve their teeth, but few know what to do for their eyes. Some who carefully clean their teeth do nothing to help their eyes carry the awful strain put upon them by modern life.

Our eyes need care, and if we refuse to give it to them we pay for our neglect in suffering and poor eyesight. A soothing, healing, healing for the eyes that go out of a hurried, should use twice a day or oftener is made after this prescription: Dissolve 5 grains Bismuth in 1 ounce of water; use as an eye bath. It cleanses the eyes, soothes the inflamed, less inflammation, makes the eyes feel smooth and fine as if well lubricated.

Many who use it find to their great surprise that they do not need glasses. They regain perfect sight and eye comfort. Used early in the morning it makes the eyes feel fresh and clear, and it never brings comfort and a soothing sense of relief from strain. After an automobile ride or a picture show, a day of close, hard work or an hour's reading that tires the eyes, an application of this solution soothes, comforts and rests the eyes.

Your druggist can fill this prescription or the Valium Drug Co. of Toronto will fill it for you. Any physician familiar with the formula, even if he has never prescribed it, will tell you that it is perfectly harmless.

Visitors to the Rescue

Petty Officer W. Bright and Ship's Corporal W. C. Hathaway have won the Distinguished Service Medal for a gallant deed in the trenches in Flanders.

A party of naval men were on a visit to the western front. The enemy exploded several mines, and the local position was for a time critical. The landmen rose to the occasion. Two of them, seeing a Vickers gun team knocked out, manned the gun at once, and kept it in action.

The position was saved.

"MAKING GOOD" MAKES FRIENDS.

There is no way of making lasting friends like "making good." After more than four decades of popularity friends here in Canada are numbered by the thousands.

Windsor, Ont.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's remedies, Golden Medical Discovery, and have been cured of my chronic cough and croupy throat."

Chatham, Ont.—"This is to certify that I have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and my husband has used Golden Medical Discovery. Both were recommended to me by my relatives who have used them with the best of results. I can highly recommend these medicines as being the very best."

There is not a drop of alcohol or any narcotic in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, but in this safe vegetable remedy and tonic there is a mighty alternative power which by replacing the blood impurities with pure, rich blood, not only ends catarrhal conditions wherever located, but vitalizes the kidneys, stomach, liver, bowels and every organ of the body.

All dealers in medicine can supply Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, or send 50 cents in one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial box of tablets.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets regulate stomach, liver and bowels.

In studies made by a German agricultural station of the effect of several turnips, carrot leaves, shives, kohlrabi leaves, grass, hay, straw, beets, cabbages and other feeds upon the flesh and fat of swine, it was found that changes in flavor were in part due to the taste and odor of the feeds, and in part to bacteria found on these feeds which generate new flavors. While it is probable that each group or type of bacteria has a specific action in producing taste and odor, it is not certain the same feed medium will produce the same taste and odor with different types of the bacteria.

Russia Has Big Stocks of Cereals

Has Sufficient Stored in Siberia to Last Two Years

The Petrograd correspondent of the London Times says that Alexander N. Naumoff, the new minister of agriculture, made his first appearance in the duma with an important speech on the Russian food prices. He referred to the lessening of agriculture since the beginning of the war and later to the decrease in the herds of cattle, which he regarded as the graviest feature of the food situation, which he hopes to remedy in part by forcing the substitution of mutton, pork and fish.

C. Naumoff estimated that the rise in the price of necessities has been 55 per cent. in Russia, as compared to 70 per cent. in Germany. Emphasizing the need of good transportation facilities to help the food situation, the minister said that there is stored at Akmolinsk, Siberia, stocks of cereals sufficient to supply European Russia for two years. He recommended the construction of a 200-mile railway from Kokshetausk to Petropavlovsk to link this region with the trunk lines of the Siberian railway.

By the employment of prisoners of war, refugees and soldiers, C. Naumoff said, over a million hands will be available for work in Russia for agricultural purposes.

Rotation of Crops

Sequence of Annual Crops Necessary to Restore the Soil to Its Original Fertility

Some interesting experiments have been conducted in Saskatchewan in connection with what is called the "Sequence of Annual Crops," one result of which is to illustrate clearly why wheat is a crop that grows so immensely more nutritious out of the soil than does the growing of any other crop.

In considering the influence of the preceding crop on the yield of wheat, the following results are given for the year 1915:

Wheat after wheat, 24 bu. 41 lb.
Wheat after flax, 27 bu. 5 lb.
Wheat after peas, 32 bu. 7 lb.
Wheat after potatoes, 33 bu. 25 lb.
Wheat after corn, 34 bu. 41 lb.
Wheat after fallow, 34 bu. 32 lb.

Similarly, the yield of every other kind of grain was found to be lighter when following a crop of wheat on the same ground, than in following any other grain. Spring rye after wheat yielded 24 bushels, 28 1/2 lb., after peas, 30 bushels, 15 1/2 lb., and upwards until after fallow it showed 34 bushels, 11 1/2 lb. Potatoes after wheat yielded 158 bushels, 4 1/2 lb., after flax, 222 bushels, 58 lb., and increasing quantities after each kind of grain until potatoes after fallow yielded 24 bushels, 40 lb.

Barley after wheat yielded 29 bushels, 45 1/2 lb., after peas 30 bushels, 10 lb., and in increasing proportion until, after fallow it yielded 38 bushels, 13 1/2 lb. Flax after wheat yielded 19 bushels, 27 lb., after peas, 23 bushels, 38 1/2 lb., and a yet larger yield of each grain; but flax on fallow ground yielded 21 bushels 36 1/2 lb.

In occasional instances, the results were subject to special influences in the way of heat, moisture, frost, etc., which caused slight variation in the regularity of the results, but wherever conditions were fairly uniform during the two seasons, the results uniformly showed that it required greater effort (so to speak) upon the part of the soil, to produce a crop of wheat than of any other grain or of any roots and that the Sequence of Annual Crops afforded the best available method of restoring the soil, in due course to its original fertility.

A Woman's Love

It takes a hundred men to make an encumbrance, but it takes only the influence of one woman to make a home. Not only admire woman as the most beautiful object ever created, but I reverence her as the chosen glory of humanity, the sanctuary of all virtues, the pledge of all perfect qualities of heart and head. It is because women are so great, so noble, so true, that their faults are considered greater. The one thing in this world that is considered constant, the only peaceful, the only unchanging, the only down in which the light burned for ever, the one star that darkness can not quench, is woman's love. It rises to the greatest heights, it sinks to the lowest depths, it forgives the most cruel injuries. A woman's love is the planet of the heart. This is the real love that subdues the earth, the love that has wrought miracles of art, that gives us music all the way from cradle song to the grand symphony that bears the soul away on wings of fire. A love that is greater than fire, sweeter than life and stronger than death.—Robert G. Ingersoll.

British Have Most Powerful Explosive. Lyddite is probably the most powerful explosive known, to man. It is largely composed of one of the derivatives of coal tar, namely, picric acid. To convert and develop the explosive properties of this new discovery to the purposes of war was only a matter of time and experiment for the expert chemists. They did not labor in vain, for they found that by melting the picric acid crystals until they turned into a fluid of the consistency of cream, and then beginning the process of making it, melted in alcohol, they got an explosive more terrifying and tremendous in its destructive powers than anything else known before or since.

The Grain Growers' Guide says that Western Canada cannot, in view of the scarcity of help and the small amount of fall plowing done, hope to produce in 1916 anything like the crop of 1915.

BRAVE BELGIANS REFUSE TO BE COWED BY THE GERMAN INVADERS

PRINT AND CIRCULATE PATRIOTIC BELGIAN PAPER

Patriotic Belgians Laugh at German Invaders' Threats and Wait Patiently for the Day of Vengeance, When the Boches—Will Be Driven From Their Country

General von Bissing is finding that the Belgians are not the "capricious children" he fondly supposed. Eluding his army of spies and defying his hordes of police, fervent patriots conduct a spirited if secret campaign, like that of the "Black Hand," against the German tyrants.

Despising the Germanized Belgian papers which seek to divide the ranks, the patriots print and circulate secretly a patriotic paper, the contents of which made German officials rave in impotent anger and sent German spies feverishly into cafes, shops, offices, and the homes of the suspect.

There are Belgians who fear the Germans, but many more fear the vengeance of the patriots, who recently showed their will and energy in tracking down the betrayer Nurse Cavell and striking him dead at his own door.

In the towns and villages of Belgium the following proclamation is prominently posted:

"Whoever within the territory governed by the governor-general is found guilty of suspected incendiarism, causing an inundation, attacks on or resistance to the representatives of German civilian or military authorities, will be punished by death, or, if retenuing circumstances are proved, by ten or twenty years' penal servitude. Whoever spreads false rumors in regard to the German army, or of so-called victories by the allies, or stirs up a rebellion, or instigates soldiers to act contrary to their military duties, will be punished by five years' imprisonment."

But the patriots laugh at these threats and wait patiently for the day of vengeance.

Everywhere in Belgium Germans are buying or commandeering goods and stock, which they send to Germany. While the food sent by America just keeps the Belgians from starving, the Germans buy up at their own prices food produced by the Belgians, especially wheat, and they keep on acquiring horses.

One Belgian farmer was ordered to sell a really fine horse for $100. Loath to part with the valuable animal, the Belgian tried subterfuge, protesting that the horse was unsuitable for military purposes as it suffered from defective eyesight.

"In that case we will give you only $40," said the German buyer, and the horse changed hands at that price.

A patriotic Belgian dentist had a similarly disconcerting experience. A German officer afflicted with toothache came to him for treatment, and the sight of the suffering Hun appealed to the patriotic instincts of the dentist, who pleaded that he had no time for a consultation.

Shortly afterwards he received an official message ordering him to be in his consulting room at seven o'clock. Promptly on the hour the victim of toothache and two other officers prepared. The patient took the dental chair, and his contraband, drawing their revolvers, threatened the unfortunate dentist with instant death if he inflicted unnecessary pain.

As the use of all firearms by Belgians is forbidden throughout the country, German officers have confiscated sporting guns, formed battues, and in some cases offered the game at fabulous prices to the real owners of the preserves.

Times simply showed on the unlucky Belgians. An unguarded word in a cafe, a sharp retort to a soldier, an "insulting" glance at an officer, and the offenders are promptly arrested and as promptly fined.

A young Belgian girl sent a letter to a friend, making use of the phrases "When these murderers are gone" and "Anyone who is not a patriot is a Boche."

The letter being intercepted, she was arrested and heavily fined.

"Why do you call us Boches?" asked the commandant petulantly. "Why, because you are Boches," retorted the young girl spiritedly. "You look like Boches, you speak like Boches, and you act like Boches." "I've a good mind to send you to Germany," said the angry commandant.

"Where the Boches come from?" asked the girl pleasantly.

She was doubly fined, but, as she told her friends afterwards, "It was well worth the money."

Belgium is full of German troops. In the words of a Dutch visitor, "You find over German territory as soon as you reach Eschen (just over the frontier). They pack the road to Antwerp, and you can't move for them in Brussels." They seem strong enough in numbers, but there is some anxiety shown over a coming allied offensive on a big scale in the spring.

Dry Soldiering

203rd Battalion Bans the Use of Liquor In Its Ranks

The popularity of "Dry Soldiering" has been demonstrated by the possibility of a doubt in the response received by Lieut.-Col. J. E. Hansford in his call for recruits for the 203rd battalion of which he is the officer commanding.

Many of those who have flocked to the king's forces in this new battalion, have stated that the fact that the sergeants of a dozen overseas regiments, for its members, has been the one point of preference most outstanding and influencing them in their selection of leadership.

The 203rd was originally heralded as the "Methodist Battalion." This, however, was an error, as its ranks are open to all. It might be stated, however, that the entire Western Canada organization of the Methodist church is behind the recruiting scheme, and its long-reaching effectiveness is already bearing much fruit.

Lieut. P. P. Lloyd of Saskatoon, the third of three sons of Principal Lloyd of Emmanuel College, in that city to enlist for service overseas, has been selected to take charge of recruiting work in the northern part of Saskatchewan, and has opened quarters in the Canada Building in Saskatoon.

Capt. W. R. Green, whose father's name is a byword among the Grain Growers of Saskatchewan, is in charge of recruiting activities in the southern portion of the province, and will have his headquarters in Moose Jaw.

For those enlisting now arrangements have been made that they may return home for seed and harvest, which is a big consideration to farmers' sons who are thus afforded the opportunity of doing double service for their king and country.

Those interested in the particular benefits offered them in this battalion might either write or wire the Winnipeg headquarters in the Great West Permanent Loan Building, and instructions will be forwarded without delay, and transportation arranged to the nearest centre.

Yes, It Has Existed

Quite true, it is, as Jane Addams avers, that China existed a thousand years without an army. "Existed" is the proper word. So does a slave exist.

So does a yellow dog, kicked by every passerby, rapped at by every fellow canine, scratched by every cat. But do slaves and yellow dogs live? Is their existence worth while? If China has so existed for a thousand years it also has been the victim of every freebooting tribe that has come its way. It has been enslaved by every adventurous nation. It has been forced under the yoke of foreign dynasties and obliged to bear the badge of servitude—a pigtail. And it has been stagnant, so stagnant it has been unable even to decay like decent, self-respecting countries under bondage. China is a fine example of the glories of pacifism.—Detroit Free Press.

Government Will Buy no More Horses

The government does not intend purchasing any more horses for military purposes in Canada during the summer. This was stated in the house in reply to an opposition question. There are 1,769 on hand in the various divisions.

John Bull Young Again

From an Address by Lloyd George to Munition Workers

What has been accomplished in these works is an illustration of what Britishers can do under pressure. Only a few weeks ago they were turning out mantelpieces here, it is believed, and catching dab-chicks in the stream. (Laughter). Now you have got these magnificent works, all within a few weeks and there pointing to the shells is the result. There is your 12-inch and there is your 8-inch, and there is your heavy howitzer—all essential to victory in this field. I am not under-estimating those gallant men at the front, but I tell you that the work which you are doing and are about to do in the course of the next few weeks is worth an army of corps of the best infantry. (Cheers). You have no notion, until you go there how important the work is that you are doing. There you find a network of trenches, labyrinth of trenches with every form of obstacle and entanglements, and concrete emplacements that our men cannot get over. It is no good pitting their poor bodies against machine guns and trench mortars. How are they to get through? Those shells are going to send them through. (Cheers). The work you are doing here is going to smash through to victory; and if you saw, as I did, how after row and row of them were just waiting to be sent across as presents for the Kaiser—how they cheer the hearts of our troops. They do not destroy life, they only give you the heart of the Kaiser. Believe me, without these thousands, scores of thousands, of the most gallant men that ever left the shores of Britain would fail. With these they will not merely get through to victory, but will come back rejoicing in victory. (Cheers). I am so glad to know that you here, each one of you, know that, realize it, and that you are putting the whole of your strength into it. It is not merely between the British army and the army of the Kaiser; it is a fight between the British workman and the workman of Germany. The British workman is supplying the material which is going to enable us to win the victory that will destroy forever the domination of Prussian militarism and inaugurate a reign of freedom in Europe. (Cheers).

This war is going to make a difference in the life of every one of the world, a difference for better or for worse which you cannot calculate. This is one of those moments in the history of the world when it takes a plunge downwards or a flight upwards. Which it takes depends upon our work here; it depends upon our work here. I can see now the difference which it is making in Britain. In the old days the British workman was a contented, easy-going, unenterprising, unambitious, unheroic, who had come to this country to steal the bread of the easy-going Briton; but we have discovered that the hustler is a British-born subject, living among us. John Bull was getting soft, flabby, fat, and indolent. He was just slouching along. Then the war came, and now his tissues are as firm as ever; he is alert, vigorous, and strong; he is hitting hard, and is going to work his way through to victory. John Bull is young again; the war has rejuvenated him. (Cheers). I see before me 2,000 men who mean business. There are a million more outside and more than a million in France and elsewhere overseas waiting for munitions. I know you will not disappoint them. They are gallant and brave fellows. Theirs the discomfort, theirs the danger, theirs, too often, the sacrifice. Put forth the whole of your strength as you are doing today, and their sacrifice will not be in vain.

Another "Voyage of the Sunbeam" Lord Brassey has placed at the disposal of the government of India his steam yacht Sunbeam, which was utilized for the same purpose last autumn in the Mediterranean.

There can be very few yachts in commission in the world which can do active service as the Sunbeam, for it must be more than forty years since the first Lady Brassey made the ship a household word by her account of a voyage round the world in it. A few years ago, it will be remembered, the gallant old yacht was entered for Transatlantic race for sailing yachts, and made quite a good showing among the younger and larger boats, though not the first to reach the goal.

The staunch old boat now fitted with steam, though retaining her masts and spars for sailing, paid a visit to Montreal harbor four or five years ago, under the command of her noble master, who is a properly qualified sea captain.

Must Not Feed Germans

Polish organizations in the United States having approached the British government, have submitted petitions and clothing to enter Poland for the inhabitants of the districts devastated by the war. Sir E. Grey has replied that it is impossible to discuss such an arrangement until Germany and Austria have prohibited the export of all foodstuffs from Russia, Poland, and have guaranteed that native stocks of foodstuffs shall not be drawn upon to feed the occupying armies.

The Anonymity of Writers

Strange Case of a Man Who Wrote Articles on Fashion

One of the standing subjects of humorous remarks among New York theatre goers are the weekly articles on men's fashions, published over the nom de plume of "Beau Brummel," in the programs in the theatres of the better class.

Some people think "Beau Brummel" is a woman, while others believe him to be merely a haberdasher with a drug habit. However that may be, it is a reasonable supposition that no man wears any of the clothes that "Beau Brummel" writes about. It couldn't be done. If any man ever arrayed himself in one week's output of the "Beau Brummel" fashions and started down Broadway he'd land in jail or the psychopathic ward at Bellevue.

The case of "Beau Brummel" is merely funny. But here is a grim and pitiful little tragedy which is in a way connected with it. In a small tenement in the eastern and poverty-stricken end of Fifty-sixth street, the police found John Conwell and his old mother, dead from gas. The man was past middle age, and unmarried. They lived alone, and he idolized the woman—a poor old drunkard. The neighbor said he used to cry hysterically when she would stagger home, stupefied with drink. At last he turned on the gas while she slept, and died with her.

He wore cotton overalls at the time of his death, and the few articles of his wearing apparel found in the apartment were worn and ragged. Yet the letters and papers which the police took possession of, proved that he earned a livelihood for himself and his mother by writing articles on the latest fashions in men's dresses.

Identifying Ropes in Navy

Every rope used in the British naval service, from heaving line to hawser, wherever used on board ship or in dockyard, has woven into one of its strands, for purposes of identification, a colored thread.

A different color is used according to the port of manufacture; red, blue, green and yellow being adopted for different ports. The presumption is that any rope with the colored thread found outside of such uses is in improper hands.

This custom has prevailed in the British navy since long before the days of Nelson.

Mother—My dear Percy, now that you've left college you must really begin looking for some sort of employment.

Percy—But don't you think, mother, it would be more dignified to wait until the offers begin to come in?

Health for Sick Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Been Woman's Most Reliable Medicine—Here is More Proof.

To women who are suffering from some form of woman's special ills, and have a constant fear of breaking down, the three following letters ought to bring hope:—

North Cranston, Wis.—"When I was 16 years old I got married and at 18 years I gave birth to twins and it left me with very poor health. I could not walk across the floor without having to sit down to rest and it was hard for me to keep about and to my work. I went to a doctor and he told me I had a displacement and ulcers, and would have to have an operation. This frightened me so much that I did not know what to do. Having heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would give it a trial and it made me as well as ever. I cannot say enough in favor of the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. MAYME ASBACH, North Cranston, Wis.

Testimony from Oklahoma.

Lawton, Okla.—"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I seemed to be good for nothing. I tired easily and had headaches much of the time and was irregular. I took it again before my little child was born and it did me a wonderful amount of good at that time. I never fail to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ailing women because it has done so much for me."—Mrs. A. L. McCASLAND, 609 Haver St., Lawton, Okla.

From a Grateful Massachusetts Woman.

Roxbury, Mass.—"I was suffering from inflammation and was examined by a physician who found that my trouble was caused by a displacement. My symptoms were bearing down pains, backache, and sluggish liver. I tried several kinds of medicine; then I was asked to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has cured me and I am pleased to be in my usual good health by using it and highly recommend it."—Mrs. B. M. OSOON, 1 Hayes Park, Roxbury, Mass.

Letter From The Front

Lynn Wiltse received the following letter from S. Robson, one of the local boys at the front.

Belgium, Feb., 1916

Dear Lynn :-

I must answer your letter of the 7th of January which I was very pleased to get. Write again as often as you like, as I can't write you much of a letter, as of course you know, it would not do to say anything of our movements and so on. However, this will let you know that we are mixed up in the game somewhere, and are not having too bad a time of it. Just now I am stuck in a dug-out overlooking the firing line and I'm here to watch for anything that may happen in our line of business and to take any necessary steps to annoy Fritz as much as we can.

He, of course, does the same for us, without much success and I sincerely hope we get better results than he does.

What he has done to us lately doesn't amount to a hill of beans but of course things are very quite just now, today especially.

It is snowy and freezing hard (that is hard for this country) and maybe everyone is feeling too cold to want to scrap much. Personally, a good red hot stove appeals to me very strongly, just now. I guess you are not very far away from one yourself at the present moment.

Very glad to hear of the fine crops last fall around Monitor, and of the high price of wheat.

It was right about poor old Hemingway, anyway the mosquitoes won't worry him much, now.

Remembrances to all.
Yours as ever,
S. Robson.

Creek Valley

The new organ has arrived and is being used during service. It is a big improvement, and is thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The last dance of the season was staged on Friday and was well attended.

Sounding Lake

Mr. and Mrs. Deacon have three sons in the army who were homesteaders in this district.

Martin Plumb left on Wednesday for Winnipeg where he intends enlisting.

There was a large gathering at W. F. Moorheads on Friday to meet Mr. and Mrs. S.B. King who had just returned from their wedding tour.

The following accounts were passed at the meeting of R. M. of Stewart, but were crowded out of last week's issue.

IONE RIPPLES

Mr. John Becker of Provost has been visiting his sister, Mrs. H. J. McIntyre.

We are pleased to see the genial face of Mr. Wetzel with us again after a three month's visit with his family and relatives in the East.

Miss Emily Watson has come to our district and is staying at the home of Mrs. B. R. Cramer.

Rumor has it that another of our esteemed residents is about to don the King's uniform. He has already passed a preliminary examination.

Mr. B. R. Cramer and family have returned to their farm after spending the winter in Consort.

A very enjoyable evening was spent Wednesday in the Schoolhouse. It was the monthly meeting of the Ione Helping Hand. The building was well filled and everyone had a good time. After an opening chorus Dudley McIntyre rendered a solo and Fritz Hansen gave a selection on the accordion in good style. The debate "Resolved that it would be in the best interests of Canada to withdraw the free homesteading privilege and to sell the remaining crown lands," was very interesting and instructive. Rev J.L. Wright and H. J. McIntyre for the affirmative, and L. H. Woodrow and M.J. Sullivan for the negative. The judges were Messrs Sharlow, Anderson and Wetzel, and they awarded the prize to the negative. Misses Keltz and Anderson gave a fine duet and Mr. Wright a solo. J.L. Woodrow is president.
